

04 January 2006

Email a friend Email the editor

- Home
- News
- Sport
- London Life
- Travel
- Events
- Photo Gallery
- Directory
- Subscribe
- Distribution
- Advertise
- About Us
- Contact Us

London Life

Chocholics beware

One of the more unique artists of our time happens to hail from Sydney, and produces art in a way that is likely to attract more than just the usual enthusiasts.

It all started when Sid Chidiac decided to paint entirely edible portraits of a diverse group of people in chocolate. His latest works include portraits of American and French presidents made out of chocolate.

The Chocolate Painter has just finished an exhibition in Paris, and is about to head off to New York where he will appear at the Chocolate Show. But before that, Sid is to appear at Harrod's until 4 November.

For more info on the exhibits and to see samples, visit www.chocolatepainter.com or www.sidchidiac.com.

headlines

Home Brewed kicks on in 2006

See the light this winter

Forget cool Britannia à la mode as an Aussie invasion

Braving the London winter

A written solution to a present dilemma

Fancy some blues and roots?

WIN PREMIER LEAGUE FOOTBALL TICKETS

Get fat this Christmas

Safe Solutions International up and running

CPA Australia launches in London

this issue...

Click to read more about the latest issue of the Australian Times...more

email newsletter

Fill in your details below to receive the Australian Times' breaking news service:

Name: Email:

If you would like to receive offers and communications from carefully vetted and relevant companies that could be of interest to you please tick the box.

